MOOD-BASED COLOR THEORY

Your mood changes. Your color palette should too. Use this guide to match colors to your mental state—not to “fix” the mood, but to honor and express it.

ANXIOUS MIND

- Electric Yellow
- Bright Orange
- Hot Pink
- Sharp Red

CREATIVE FLOW

- Teal
- Violet
- Lime Green
- Fuchsia

DEEP THOUGHT

- Navy Blue
- Deep Purple
- Charcoal Gray
- Burgundy

JOYFUL ENERGY

- Sunshine Yellow
- Coral
- Turquoise
- Soft Pink

MELANCHOLY

- Slate Blue
- Soft Gray
- Dusty Purple
- Muted Teal

ENERGIZED

- Bright Red
- Orange
- Gold
- Magenta

MIX IT UP: Moods aren't pure. You can be anxious AND creative. Joyful AND melancholy. Use multiple palettes on one page. Let them coexist. That's the truth of being human.

Your mind is an Abstract Mind. Let your colors prove it.

6 EXPERIMENTAL CHALLENGES

Ready to break the rules?

OPPOSITE DAY

Do everything wrong on purpose.

SPEED ROUNDS

Race against the clock.

BLIND COLORING

Take away your eyes. Trust your hands.

MIXED MEDIA MADNESS

Every tool, one page.

PATTERN INTERRUPT

Do the exact opposite of your default.

TEXTURE PLAY

Make the page 3D.

Pick one challenge per week. Document before/after.
Watch yourself grow as an artist—and a human.

MENTAL WELLNESS WISDOM

- “Your mind is a canvas. You get to choose the colors you paint it with.”
- “Color outside the anxiety’s lines. It doesn’t get to define your edges.”
- “Creativity is intelligence having fun.” — Albert Einstein
- You don’t have to be good at art to deserve the healing it brings.
- Some pages will flow. Some pages will fight you.
Both teach you something.”
- “Your mental health matters.
Your creative expression matters. You matter.”
- This is not about making pretty pages.
This is about making space for yourself.”
- Every single page you complete is proof:
You can finish something. You can create beauty from blank space. You can show up for yourself.”

Return to these when you need them. They’ll be here.

CREATIVE BRAIN PROMPTS

These optional prompts deepen your practice.
Use them before, during, or after coloring.
No need to write essays—even one word counts.

BEFORE YOU COLOR:

1. What's my mental weather today?
2. If today had a color, what would it be?
3. What do I need from this session?
4. Which collection calls to me today?

WHILE YOU'RE COLORING:

5. Am I holding tension anywhere?
6. What thoughts keep interrupting?
7. If this page could speak, what would it say?
8. What emotion is showing up?

AFTER YOU FINISH:

9. How do I feel now vs when I started?
10. What surprised me about this page?
11. If I had to title this page, what would it be?
12. What did this page teach me today?

DEEPER REFLECTION:

- If this page had a soundtrack, what song?
- What would my 16-year-old self think?
- If I colored this tomorrow, how different?
- What part of my life does this represent?
- Am I coloring to avoid something?
- Am I coloring to process something?
